

The Irish Concrete Society

Architects Individual Membership 2016/2017

The Irish Concrete Society is a not for profit learned society founded in 1973 to promote excellence in the use of concrete in Ireland. It is a cross-sectorial, independent, impartial, science and engineering based organisation. The Society holds regular CPD seminars and lectures to help with the technical aspects of concrete and hosts its prestigious Annual Awards, which has been held annually for over 30 years. Visit www.concrete.ie for more.

The Society's Key Objectives

- The provision of information on all aspects of concrete by way of meetings, seminars and site visits.
- The circulation of papers and journals dealing with concrete matters.
- The promotion of excellence in the use of the material.
- The promotion of research and other scientific work regarding concrete materials technology.

The Society wishes to increase the awareness of its objectives and services within the Architectural profession. It is in that context that we bring the following unique membership category for Architects:
